Aloha to whom it may concern, I am writing to you voicing my concern of who and how your present board members from the planning committee is addressing many issues pertaining Hawaiian lands. Making these changes in having more of a professional and unbiased board would be the best for all that resided here and those of who many or may not be a present resident here in our islands. Having these guidelines of having knowledgeable members will make a major change in how we conduct ourselves in a whole new manner as far as proposing a development or just change of zoning land. With knowledge comes responsibility for our past, present and future. We the people rely on our planning committee on important issues, such as land, water, and rights to lands. Two licensed attorney's on the planning board would be a great start and many board committees have more than two. It really comes down to ethics and keeping a fair stance on many issues that need real issues. Reconstructing members with the history and understanding of Hawaiians of how others think and live will open ones eyes to the world. And it starts right here on Maui.
