Pickleball 101

Somewhere along the line, pickleball got a reputation as a sport for seniors. It is not necessarily untrue — players aged 55 and up are the largest sector of participants at 19.8%.

But that age is rapidly changing. According to data from SFIA, the average age of players was 41 years old in 2020, but that age dropped to 38 years old in 2021. This change happened because of skyrocketing growth among players under the age of 24 (21% of players).

There is sustained growth for young people entering this sport; participants aged 18 – 34 make up the second-largest segment at 18.5%.

This sport is gaining huge ground everywhere, but there are unique hotspots across the United States. The three states that have over 500 pickleball courts are Texas (519), Florida (770) and California (794).

On a smaller scale, Seattle is the city with the most pickleball courts (49), followed by Denver (37) and Portland (33).

Austin has the #6 spot with 32 pickleball locations, but they are sure to tip the scales with the opening of their upcoming Austin Pickle Ranch.
