I strongly support PEA-13 because a couple weeks ago one of my teachers showed me a vape presentation which talked about the effects of vaping and the ingredients used to make e-juice, which is used in e-cigarettes. I learned that the effects of vaping are similar to that of smoking a cigarette. Although vapes don't have tar as cigarettes do, they have many other bad things like formaldehyde and nicotine which have the same and if not, worse side effects. Vaping can also give you throat cancer and heart attacks, just like cigarettes can do. They both have the same side effects and can cause the same damage to your lungs and body. This is why I strongly support PEA-13 because I believe that ESD's should be thought of at the same intensity of all other smoking devices, and PEA-13 could help other people see that too.
