Additional Comments:

TVRs use existing infrastructure versus building centralized condos and hotel room infrastructure for tourism with a quality interaction between visitors and the community. Income flows into the community. B&Bs help homeowners upkeep their property to age in place with less community expense compared to Molokai's limited senior options and housing. TVR's also assist in housing for temporary workers for example construction crews and visiting nurses. Accommodations will be severely limited for sporting events such as baseball and paddling. TVRs help the community in economic development and low key infrastructure use.

Additional Comments:

There would be devastating economic ramifications involved with the proposed termination of Short Term Rental Homes on Molokai. As a prior manager of 2 legally permitted beachfront vacation rentals, I can testify that LOCAL families would have far less lodging opportunities for all the various planned and unplanned events that take place on Molokai throughout the year. Those such as family reunions, Class reunions, Festivals of Aloha, Ka Hula Piko, All Water events, Funerals, 1 year baby parties, Luaus, baseball tournaments, etc. People have quickly forgotten that before permits were required, there was rampant short term rental. This has, at the very least provided structure and accountability for those who go through the process of becoming legal. The inevitable loss of dollars spent ON Molokai (if this passes) would considerably affect those who ARE working where NOTHING would change for those who don't.

I heard that there was a a group of people at the meeting that appeared threatening if the Planning Commission didn't agree with them. I heard from one homeowner that she didn't attend the meeting and speak in support of vacation rentals because she is afraid they would burn her house down. This is beyond crazy in my opinion that a small group have a strangle hold on the island.

Additional Comments:

To whom it may concern,

It was six years ago my husband suggested visiting Molokai since we had been to the other islands. Not knowing anything about Molokai or how to get there I googled it. I found the Molokai Visitor website. Once I read that Molokai was the "friendly island" and it was the people's love for family and faith we knew we wanted to come visit.

We came for two weeks and stayed at two different homes that were managed by a property management company. Well, of course we fell in LOVE! And we came over three other times before purchasing a home just out of Kaunakakai last year.

We the help of ACE, Takkies, Molokai Furniture and Kalele Bookstore to mention a few were able to give our home a complete facelift.

We felt good knowing the money we spent on the island was enabling to go back into the community. (Being business owners ourselves we know the importance of keeping dollars local.) And now that we have our STRH permit and are ready to share our home with others YOU want to bring a halt to the ONE thing (tourism) that supports so many families here on Molokai just sickens me.

Why would you want to do this? What will you gain from this? Who will gain from this? Who has a hidden agenda here? How do you expect business to stay open?

How do you expect families to survive with no jobs? How do you expect the community to stay safe if the police and fire depts. experience cut back because not enough tax money is coming in to pay their salaries?

I seen this happen to the town I grew up in. The Glenn County Sherriff now controls the City of Willows in California.

Please don't do this to the people of Molokai.

Molokai is kind, good and loving. Don't keep it a secret.

Share the Aloha! Share Molokai!

I pray you will find it in your hearts to do the right thing by Molokai and it's people.

Sincerely,

Rhonda & Joel Snow

Additional Comments:

The members of the Molokai Planning Commission who voted to stop all STR properties on Molokai have acted in the most undemocratic way imaginable. They are abusing the power of government to create a totalitarian state where only their opinions matter. I strongly urge the individuals on the Committee to re-think their decision and stand on the side of Fairness and the Rule of Law.

Additional Comments:

I feel the net benefits to Molokai of legally permitted, inspected and regulated short term rentals far outweigh any disadvantages, particularly in light of the dearth of alternatives for visitors. Over the years, we have seen these rentals draw many people from around the world who end up contributing much more than money to the diverse culture and resources available to all on the island.

Additional Comments:

It is about balance. Should the island be 100% short term rental with no controls, of course not. Likewise it makes little sense and does not look out for the future generations of residents of Molokai to ban short term rentals all together. Not every citizen on Molokai wants to be on welfare. There are many hard working folks that are trying to put their kids through school and want a better life for their family and choose to work. Short term rentals provide work for those that want it and is necessary to sustain at least a minimum economy. No one wants Molokai to become an overrun tourist destination, so the easy solution is to put tight restrictions on a limited number of tourism units but not a 100% ban.

Additional Comments:

I have 3 vacation condo rentals on Molokai that have greatly contributed to Molokai's economy and supported local business owners for nearly twenty years. The need for outside economical support of this Island is unquestionable. Without it, families will become destitute and the children will suffer. Tourism helps to sustain economic growth for families of Molokai and generations to come.

Additional Comments:

Molokai is one of the least prosperous islands
Economic enrichment is crucial to all its inhabitants, not just one group
The West End home owners and the Ranch are a principale tax paying group for the county
There are few places for tourists to stay on Molokai
The restriction of rentals hurts tourism, benefits other islands at the expense of the least prosperous island. This is poor economic policy for the county and the state.
